PRESS RELEASE

Lehman, Lee & Xu Delegation Visits Mongolian Embassy

Beijing, China – August 26, 2008 - Although the ancient history between Mongolia and China was difficult at times, the two neighboring countries have, today, formed a strong and mutually beneficial relationship. Mongolia is a country of rich natural resources and a growing economy that will surely prove to be an important partner for China. On August 26, 2008 Mr. Edward Lehman met with Mongolia's Consul General, Mr. Ariunbold Yadmaa to discuss the potential formation of a partnership between Mongolia and Lehman, Lee & Xu. The Mongolian embassy recognized the expertise of the firm in representing diplomatic missions and foreign embassies in China and invited Mr. Lehman to discuss the legal services the firm can offer. While Mongolia is continuing to strengthen its government and economy there is great potential for a mutually beneficial relationship between the neighboring countries. Lehman, Lee & Xu recognizes this potential and seeks to strengthen the relationship between Mongolia and China while providing the country of Mongolia and its people legal protection and assistance.

As Mr. Lehman entered the Mongolian embassy in Beijing, along with two other staff members from the firm, the most noticeable aspect was the line of people waiting out front of the embassy. "I soon realized that all the people were waiting in line to obtain visas to enter Mongolia. This was a very positive sign, as it represents the growth and potential that Mongolia has and the increase in tourism and business travel to the area" said Mr. Lehman. Walking through the beautifully landscaped embassy grounds, Mr. Lehman "truly felt the unique culture and history of Mongolia." The embassy itself is magnificently decorated with paintings depicting the unique natural surroundings of Mongolia as well as the renowned cultural events such as the Naadam holiday, in which horse races and parades draw mass attention. The meeting room was an elegant space equipped with beautiful teal chairs and an impressive portrait of Genghis Kahn done in needlepoint hanging on the back wall. More important than the interior design, though, was the hospitality and kindness of the Mongolian consulate himself. “We were generously greeted by Mr. Ariunbold and eagerly listened to him discuss the future of Mongolia and its relationship with China” Mr. Lehman recalled. The representatives from Lehman, Lee & Xu hope to aid the Mongolian embassy in building its relationship with China and keeping its people safe and secure.
